

Protect Your Pet From Theft

MYTH: All animals used in medical research are specifically bred for that purpose.

FACT: 30-50% of all dogs and cats used in medical research are “random source” -- meaning they are obtained from pounds, shelters and USDA-licensed Class “B” dealers. Undercover investigations have proven that these dealers routinely steal family pets and sell them to research for hundreds of dollars.

Protect Your Pet! Your companion animals are depending on you for their safety. Follow these simple rules to keep them safe:

TAG -- make sure your animals are registered and are always wearing a current tag.

TATTOO -- a small tattoo on your animal's inner leg is a painless and permanent way to identify them. www.Tattoo-A-Pet.com

CHIP -- microchips are essential! Ensure your pet is always “found” – ask your vet to chip your animal today! www.AvidMicrochip.com

WATCH -- treat your animals as you would a small child. Never leave them alone in cars or tied up outside. It only takes a second for them to be stolen.
